

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE MAY NOMINATE STRAUS

Progressive Candidate Is Asked
If He Would Accept.

SENDS FAVORABLE REPLY

May Be Hatched as to League Indorsing the Rest of the State Ticket.

An inquiry from the Independence League went yesterday to Oscar Straus as to whether or not he would accept an endorsement from the league for the governorship if the convention, which meets today, chooses to give him one. Mr. Straus replied that he could see no reason why he should not accept if the league would adopt substantially its platform of 1910 together with certain other progressive features, and if there were no "legal difficulties" in the way. He suggested that the rest of the Progressive nominees be endorsed also and that the league have a talk with William H. Borah, State chairman.

The inquiry went from Herbert R. Limburg, who was permanent chairman of the Independence League convention in 1910 and is now a member of the executive committee of the State committee. Mr. Limburg is a delegate to today's convention which meets in Arlington Hall. He said that his telegram to Mr. Straus was purely a personal inquiry, but that he was sure Mr. Straus had a very large following in the league. This is the telegram:

Dear Mr. Straus, Philadelphia, N. Y.: Some delegates Independence League convention to be held here Thursday favor your nomination for Governor. League platform was undoubtedly progressive. Many of League principles are embodied in Progressive party platform. League has always been in favor of initiative, referendum, recall, honest direct primary law, statewide Massachusetts type popular election of United States senators and instructive vote to the legislature for United States Senators, income tax, progressive inheritance tax, abolition of grade crossings and doing away with operation of streets of New York by New York Central railroad, constitutional amendments permitting municipal ownership and operation of all municipal utilities, woman suffrage, legislation nullifying laws protecting public service corporations in the holdings of unused franchises and the illegal occupation of streets.

I desire to inquire whether you would accept nomination of Independence League if tendered upon platform substantially unchanged from 1910 and containing above features. You will agree that it is not unfair to delegate to be informed of your attitude.

HERBERT R. LIMBURG.
Mr. Straus sent the following reply:

Telegram received wherein you ask me whether I would accept the nomination of the Independence League if tendered upon a platform substantially the same as that of 1910 containing the additional features outlined. I am sure that there is a very wide sentiment for Mr. Straus in the Independence League. I would like to know if the nomination could be welcomed before the convention for the party would certainly not want to tender its endorsement unless it was desired.

Mr. Limburg said he felt very sure the convention would not endorse Mr. Straus's associates on the Progressive ticket, but he did not think Mr. Straus would refuse to accept an endorsement from that source. He said he was certain there would be no real complications of the sort that Mr. Straus seemed to be suggesting in an endorsement by the Independence League would forfeit the voters a broader election and would not have a chance to themselves on the law.

It is really easier under the law than under the previous election law for the Progressives to secure a place on the ballot. Under the Levy law a party could have a place on the ballot at the next election. Under the old election law it took ten votes for the candidate to appear in order to get the column on the ballot. This is one of the few good features of the Levy law.

Under the Independence League platform, endorse every candidate of the Progressives neither party would lose so long as each party to the vote for any one candidate on the State ticket.

SAYS DYE MADE HAIR DIE.

Also Affected Sight and Hearing.
Mrs. Mulligan Declares.

Mrs. Margaret Mulligan, a widow, living at 377 Dean street, Brooklyn, began suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against William H. Hirsch & Sons, druggists, to recover $25,000 for damages and suffering alleged to have resulted from the application of a hair stain purchased at the defendant's store in March, 1911.

Mrs. Mulligan sets forth that she had "a luxuriant and full head of dark brown hair" with a few silver threads. After application of the stain, she averted, her hair began to fall out and now she has little left. She says her age, she's over 30, has nothing to do with her fast growing baldness.

Mrs. Mulligan also claims her eyesight and hearing were affected and that she has not been able to follow her vocation of nurse for six months.

The company has entered a general denial.

JOHN B. ROESCH A SUICIDE.

Well Known Brooklyn Lawyer Found Unconscious in Central Park.

John B. Roesech, who for years was a well known lawyer in Brooklyn, but is said to have been a wanderer since he disappeared two years ago, when charges were made against him before the Brooklyn Bar Association, was found unconscious in Central Park late on Tuesday night and died as he was being placed in an ambulance. In his pocket was a torn label with the word "suicide" on it, and the policeman Roesech took the body to the morgue.

Roesech was a son of a prosperous tailor in Brooklyn, who sent his son first to St. Francis Xavier's College and then to a seminary in Montreal to study for the priesthood. Young Roesech left the seminary after three years and entered the Albany Law College, from which he was graduated at the age of 23.

He practiced law first in Syracuse. Then he moved back to Brooklyn and became a partner in the law firm of Swayne, Johnson & Roesech. He left this firm and formed a partnership with John Cooney. When Mr. Cooney was elected to the Assembly, Roesech moved to the Eastern District and built up a big police court practice.

Friends said that if Roesech had taken care of his earnings he would have been worth $500,000. When stories of financial troubles between Roesech and clients arose two years ago the Brooklyn Bar Association began an investigation and Roesech dropped from view.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Frederick M., a grandson and three granddaughters.

School officials of Washington have burned 4,000 text books because they were diagnosed as germ carriers.

Housewives of Cleveland have started a boycott against the milk truck, which is blamed for raising the price from eight to nine cents a quart.

Harry Sharper, 23 years old, of Camden, N. J., and Joseph Hutchinson, the same age, of Oakley, were killed at the New York shipbuilding Company's plant when a scaffold collapsed.

Faces knocked down by imported strike breakers during the recent Boston elevated fight against unions and extra operating expenses during that period, which has been estimated at $100,000, and the cost of the "breakers" cost the street railway company $451,000, according to its annual report.

It is elected Governor, as I have every reason to believe it will be, it is important that I should be supported by a Progressive caucus, so that we can make effective legislation the rule of the people on the great questions. I refer you to our State chairman, William H. Hirsch.

OSCAR STRAUS.
"I am sure that there is a very wide sentiment for Mr. Straus in the Independence League." Mr. Limburg.

"I wanted to know if the nomination could be welcomed before the convention for the party would certainly not want to tender its endorsement unless it was desired."

Mr. Limburg said he felt very sure the convention would not endorse Mr. Straus's associates on the Progressive ticket, but he did not think Mr. Straus would refuse to accept an endorsement from that source. He said he was certain there would be no real complications of the sort that Mr. Straus seemed to be suggesting in an endorsement by the Independence League would forfeit the voters a broader election and would not have a chance to themselves on the law.

WINSTON CHURCHILL AIMS SATIRE AT TAFT

"Richard Carvel's" Author on the Stump in His Campaign for Governor.

Lisbon, N. H., Oct. 2.—Winston Churchill, the Progressive candidate for Governor, is making an energetic campaign and his speeches contain some delightful bits of sarcasm and satire directed at the two old parties. Tonight at a large meeting here he aimed his shafts at President Taft and kept his audience in continuous ripples of laughter. Mr. Churchill said in part:

About ten years ago the city of St. Louis was struck by a cyclone. And at the very height of it a baby was blown in the window of a worthy couple and landed on the bed unharmed. Now the President of the United States, Mr. Taft, has about as clear an idea of the force which blew him into the White House and which will presently blow him out again as the baby had of the cyclone which blew him into the window. He lives in a cyclone cellar of his own digging, and every once in a while Mr. John Hays Hammond takes a look out and tells him everything is all right and that the guggenheim structure is still standing the strain.

To change the figure, Mr. Taft is a constitutional Rip Van Winkle who is under the fond illusion that he is still living in the good old times of undisturbed corporation rule. On Saturday Mr. Hammond torched his men up the hill, and Mr. Taft told them that the American Revolution was over, and that the civil war had been brought to a successful conclusion. They cheered, and then Mr. Hammond marched them down again.

"Fortunately," said the President, "there is not the slightest chance of the success of the third party." Prosperity reigns. The American Tobacco Company is still doing a big business, and a single section of the Standard Oil Company has recently declared a $200,000 dividend. The 300 per cent. woolen tariff, so wisely maintained by the Payne-Aldrich act, is making the mills hum.

ART POSTCARDS IN COURT.
Constable Calls Them "Vicious," but Seller Is Out on Probation.

What is art and what is not had to be decided by the Justice of Special Sessions yesterday when Anthony Constable appeared with a package of postcards. Tony Kelly, of 606 Morris avenue, insisted they were replicas of world famous statues and artists, but the agent of the New York Society for the Prevention of Vice called them "vicious examples of the modern art" and a menace to the thousands of children going to and from school in the streets of our city.

"There are some examples of the nude," pronounced Justice Collins, "which are comely and writers familiar with the subject unite in pronouncing art in the highest sense, but which persons with too high a sense of strictness object to."

"Your Honor, I protest," put in Mr. Constable.

"Not in the slightest sense, Mr. Constable, were we impugning your motives or your case," Justice O'Reefe answered. "We are all in accord in dealing with those who pervert the youthful mind, as our decisions from this bench must have shown forcibly and unmistakably."

After an art conference over the postcards, however, Tony was let off on probation.
